

Blue Sky Group

Join researchers from across the Georgia CTSA as we convene the first Extracellular Vesicles Research Blue Sky Group.

Emory and Morehouse School of Medicine researchers will share information on interests, research, and resources in extracellular vesicles (EVs). We want to know:

- What kind of EV research is currently being performed locally?
- What methods are being used for EV research?
- What resources are available locally to study EVs?
- What are potential collaborative opportunities for local EV researchers?

What is a Blue Sky Group?

Blue Sky Groups are convened to discuss common research areas and identify potential areas of collaboration. These groups meet once to discuss a broad topic, and then future meetings are organized based on interests and potential outcomes.

When:

August 27, 2018
4:30 – 6:00 p.m.

Where:

Emory University
School of Medicine,
Room 170A
(call-in option available upon request)

RSVP:

Email

Christina.Shuman@emory.edu to reserve your seat.

Space is limited!