

Extra! Extra!

Office of Compliance

presents

Ivan Oransky, MD

of

Retraction Watch

Retractionwatch has become famous in the world of academic research for examining the self-correcting nature of science by publicizing the retraction of academic journal articles and digging into the stories behind the retractions. Dr. Oransky is co-founder of Retraction Watch and also teaches medical journalism at New York University's Science Health and Environmental Reporting Program.

What can you expect:

Understanding the impact of retractions, both good and bad.

Who should attend:

All members of the research community, including faculty, students, and staff.

When:

November 6, 2015

Where:

Emory University Hospital Auditorium

Time/Agenda

8:30 – 9:00 Continental Breakfast
9:00 – 9:30 Video presentation, recognition and introduction
9:30 – 10:45 Dr. Oransky's presentation
10:45 – 11:00 Raffle and closing remarks

How to Register:

For Emory participants, sign up on ELMS with your Emory NET ID.

Course Catalog: Office of Research Compliance

Course Name: "OC: Retractions Self-Corrections, #210017"

For Non-Emory participants, send an email to orc@emory.edu