

2024 ATLANTIS SYMPOSIUM

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

1st Annual ATLANTIS Symposium

The ATLANTIS Symposium serves as a central platform for researchers, providing a dedicated opportunity to share ideas, showcase innovative techniques, and contribute to the advancement of kidney, urology, and hematology research. With a focus on networking, collaboration, and career development, the symposium will feature a keynote speaker and a variety of trainee presentations, all focused on KUH research. This event creates a conducive environment for strengthening existing partnerships, forging new collaborations, sharing best practices, and cultivating innovative ideas for new research. We extend our invitation to KUH researchers already affiliated with ATLANTIS as well as those outside this network as we strive to enhance research productivity and facilitate collaborations and connections.

This year's symposium will be in person on Thursday, March 14, 2024, in the Health Sciences Research Building 1 (HSRB).

Who can submit an abstract: We invite abstracts from all early career KUH researchers including undergraduates, medical students, PhD students, postdoctoral fellows (PhD and MD), and junior faculty

- Select abstracts will be invited to give oral presentations.
- You can submit abstracts you have prepared/presented at other events.
- Prizes will be awarded in the categories of "Top Talk" and "Premier Poster"
