2017 3rd ACTSI Community Engagement Research Program Forum

“Understanding Resilience in Underserved Communities; From Research to Reality”

Resistance* Recovery *Longevity

The Forum Goals are to:

- 1. Facilitate linkages among public, private and community organizations and academic researchers interested in community-engaged research for improving health;
- 2. Better understand resilience in communities and the factors that help individuals to adapt over time to life-changing situations and stressful conditions;
- 3. Identify the complex reactions and physiological changes in the body that cause damage and affect aging and longevity; and
- 4. Discuss the process of recovery and change through which individuals and communities can improve health and wellness.

The Atlanta Clinical and Translational Science Institute (ACTSI) is an inter-institutional collaboration focused on accelerating the translation of science and research discoveries to application at the community level. The goal of the ACTSI Community Engagement Research Program (CERP) is to expand existing academic-community research partnerships, develop new bi-directional collaborations and interface with other ACTSI components. CERP is co-led by the Prevention Research Centers of Emory and Morehouse School of Medicine (MSM).

The 2017 3rd. CERP Community Partnership Forum will provide participants with the tools required to develop and sustain, successful and mutually-beneficial, community-university translational research partnerships to improve population health in metro Atlanta and beyond.
