

March of Dimes: 2022 Research Grants– Application is due: September 10, 2021

- March of Dimes is committed to advancing the health of all moms and babies, and that involves seeking answers through a diverse research portfolio. They are actively seeking applications for research grant funding that involve translational and actionable science that will lead directly to interventions or preventions.
- The proposed research should focus on one of these priority areas:
  - Pregnancy-Related Disorders
  - Developmental Origins of Infant Health
  - Maternal Morbidity & Mortality
- They anticipate making at least two awards in each category, with each ranging from $200,000 - $300,000. Grants will be distributed for 24 months to 36 months, with a set of deliverables to be met for each year, before the next year's support can be distributed.
- Contact: Office of Foundation Relations, Nicole Dancz, nicole.dancz@emory.edu