WHO:

Strategic Empowerment Tailored for Health Equity Investigators (SETH)

WHERE:

Morehouse School of Medicine, Atlanta, Georgia

WHAT:

The study will determine the effectiveness of Developmental Network Coaching in the career advancement of diverse early-stage investigators

WHY:

The importance of the study is to examine the effects of Early-Stage Investigators (ESIs) characteristics, contextual factors, as well as institutional contexts that shape their social capital, research productivity, and career persistence

HOW:

A randomized controlled study will evaluate the effectiveness of a developmental network (DN) informed coaching intervention on the research productivity of ESIs including those from under-represented groups. We will recruit 220 ESIs who commit to submitting at least one NIH grant application within 12 months of completing the grant writing training/coaching. Each cohort will be invited to a 2-day virtual orientation, followed by grant writing and coaching in the virtual Health Equity Learning Collaboratory (EQ-Collaboratory)
